THINK AND QUESTION AS YOU WRITE

Good readers have ideas and images in their minds when they read. It is important for readers to have thoughts and reactions to the text at all times. Choose a book or story to read and use the following chart to monitor your thoughts. Ask yourself a question after you read every page or paragraph. This question can be directed to a character or the author. You can even ask yourself a question about some information you would like to research in order to clarify or further your understanding on a topic.
